By Dan Lorenzo

Boy oh boy, that Brad Pitt sure is a moral crusader. He says he won't marry Angelina Jolie until everybody can marry anybody. "Angie and I will consider tying the knot when everyone else in the country who wants to be married is legally able." That's great, Brad! We could have men marrying men, men marrying little boys, children will marry each other...it all sounds great! And just like all you Hollywood douchebags, the marriages will last a year or two. Let's all get married, have kids, cheat on our spouses, get divorced, and then have more kids just like Brad Pitt! Fanfuckingtastic Brad!

Chaunce and I both got tons of hate mail because of what we wrote in our columns last week. Some people don't understand this: We don't all have to agree on everything. My wife doesn't agree with everything I write, yet we are still somehow happily married after nine years. I have quite a few friends who have completely different views from me.

I have friends who voted for John Kerry. I have friends who think my wife and I are weird because we like to travel and we eat Indian, Thai, and Vietnamese food. I think you're missing out and boring if you eat American food everyday. Whatever though.

If you were looking to watch channel 5 or 9 news lately, forget about it. They both are just one big infomercial for their new white trash shows. Non-stop plugging. It's embarrassing. Somehow Harry Martin and Brenda Blackmon still have big goofy smiles as if they're real news anchors, as they try to get excited about what happened on Fashion House last night. Yowza.

I actually skipped The Simpsons premiere Sunday night to watch The Path To 9/11. The Clintons were pissed at how they were portrayed. They made ABC edit out some parts of the movie. Man, I wish you could do that in real life, so we could have edited out the whole Clinton presidency.

You watch the Jets on Sunday? I was coming home from the city when the Jets were up 16-0. Chad lives I guess, huh?

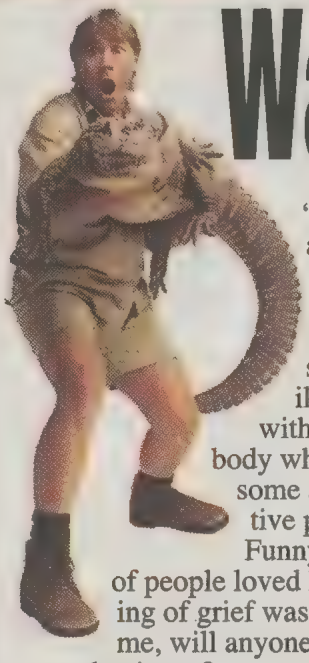
NEWS, TRUTH AND GOSSIP

BY CHAUNCE HAYDEN (send gossip to: Chaunce100@aol.com)

Was it something I said?



"How dare you fucking assholes print such a disgusting and disrespectful piece on Steve Irwin. At least have some respect for his family. He was a real person without a nasty bone in his body while you can only grab some attention by being negative pricks...

Funny how so many millions of people loved him and the outpouring of grief was insurmountable. Tell me, will anyone notice any loss at your demise....?

As a journalist in America you have only contributed to making the country the most consistently unpopular nation in the world. Rethink your choices....."

—sharynsk@yahoo.com

"You are a bunch of dumb ass fuckers.... To slander Steve Irwin a matter of days after his death is completely inappropriate. You should be ashamed that his family will have to read such garbage even before they have a chance to bury him. If printing such spiteful shit is the only way that you can get people to read your pathetic magazine then you should just give up now you pieces of crap... he may be deceased but you bunch are the assholes!!!!"

—tford_23@yahoo.com

"Australia has just lost one of our favorite sons. Steve Irwin was an absolute icon Down Under, and what you said about him [being the] 'deceased asshole of the week' is akin to shitting on the American flag and setting it alight. Our whole nation is in mourning and I can only hope that you speak for your perverted selves. Don't ever set foot in Australia. May you burn in hell!!!"

—Thor Eriksen

"I just read an article stating that you called Steve Irwin 'deceased asshole of the week'. How insensitive and utterly cruel.

Lets hope when you go, that the world doesn't criticize you for what you have done (God forbid eh?)!!!

If you have no respect for the man, how about a little respect for his grieving wife (one of your fellow Americans!) and his poor little children?"

—Bobbiegirl@bigpond.com

"What is wrong with you people? The comments you made about Steve Irwin were ridiculous and completely insensitive. You need to think before you write. Let's turn the tables: Your mom dies and your neighbors go around screaming 'Ding! Dong! The Bitch is dead! Your mom sucked!'

Just because you didn't agree with his life, doesn't mean it didn't matter to someone. Is nothing sacred anymore? If we can't have dignity in life, at least let's have some dignity in death."

—Amy Jennings

"Crikey, I think you're a wank!"

—messa@hotmail.com

"You are an asshole."

—Steve Irwin fan

"A little word up...to your gutter journalist Chaunce Hayden. I speak for many thousands of Australians..... keep your insensitive, misinformed and uneducated comments about Steve Irwin to yourself. It is quite obvious to myself and most Australians that you have no idea what this passionate bloke was about. All I can hope is that one day when you choke we can vote you as the 'ultimate deceased asshole of the decade'."

—glene@surfingaustralia.com

Artie Lange's Beer League

If swilling beer and nasty bachelor parties aren't your speed, try...

Cara Buono

Interview by Chauncé Hayden

Photography by Lisa Walter/Hot Shoe Media

Talented actress Cara Buono shines alongside Howard Stern's sidekick Artie Lange, playing the quintessentially misunderstood girlfriend in the highly-anticipated independent film Artie Lange's Beer League.

Not only is this stunning brunette a skilled performer, but the Bronx native is an accomplished writer who recently adapted F. Scott Fitzgerald's classic novel This Side Of Paradise for Miramax Films. Buono brought the project to Harvey Weinstein's attention, and sold the pitch while co-writing When The Cat's Away, also for Miramax.

Buono, an admitted workaholic, also recently penned her first television episode for A&E for their new series At The End Of Day. The multi-talented actress also wrote and directed the short film Baggage—starring Minnie Driver and Liev Schreiber—which was shown at more than 20 film festivals.

Other acting film credits include The Hulk, Next Stop Wonderland, Happy Accidents and Kicking and Screaming, just to name a few. Buono has also tackled Broadway, performing in The Rose Tattoo opposite Mercedes Reuhl and Anthony LaPaglia. She was also seen in The Tenth Man and Some Americans Abroad, both at Lincoln Center.

As if all that didn't keep Buono busy enough, she joined the cast of The Sopranos last season, portraying Christopher's wife. This following a busy year and a half when she appeared on many television series, including Third Watch, C.S.I., Law & Order and Miss Match. She also garnered critical praise for her role in the TV movie Deep In My Heart, in which she played a young Anne Bancroft.

I recently sat down with Buono for a burger and fries, and to chat about Artie Lange's Beer League, her love for the Mets, and what it's like being married to the Mob!

Chaunce Hayden: Last week Beerfest hit theaters, this week it's Artie Lange's Beer League. Is there room for two beer movies at the same time?

Cara Buono: I don't know anything about Beerfest. But what I do know is that there couldn't be a more different film. But if people like beer, can there ever be enough movies with "beer" in the title? Come on!

Tell me what Beer League is about.

It's about two rival softball teams in a New Jersey beer league who have to play each other to see who stays in the league. They're always getting into fights and things like that. It's like The Bad News Bears grew up and all became alcoholics and joined a softball league.

The film stars Howard Stern's sidekick, Artie Lange. Do you anticipate every Howard Stern fan seeing the film?

I think if all the Howard Stern fans and Artie Lange fans come out, they'll be rewarded because they'll be so happy! They'll love the film! It's definitely a movie with the audience in mind. But I also think that people who aren't familiar with Artie Lange and aren't necessarily Howard Stern fans will still find the movie very funny. It's a throwback to those '80s comedies like Porky's. I'm talking about the movies that were really irreverent, the kind of movies where you said to yourself, "I can't believe they said that!" It's very funny.

Would you see Beer League if you weren't starring in it?

This will sound crazy, but I'm a liberal feminist kind of chick. So this would be a movie that I would automatically say I'm not going to see. But it's hard to say. Maybe if I saw the trailer for it and saw how funny it was, I would change my mind! It's really funny! It's laugh out loud funny.

The reason Hollywood stopped making those kinds of movies is because of all the pressure religious and right wing groups put on the studios to be more responsible and politically correct. Think this film will get beat up for sending out the wrong message?

It's a comedy! It's purely entertainment. It's not trying to make any statement. There's no agenda. It's just supposed to make you laugh. It's just a fun film.

But with a low budget, will a film like Beer League be able to generate any interest outside of the Howard Stern audience?

I think like all independent films—because they don't have the backing of a studio or the money—that it's always harder to get audiences into the theater.

It seems like most of the cast are friends with Artie. What was it like making a movie in that kind of environment?

A lot of the cast did all know each other. They were all Artie's friends. But I didn't know anybody. It was kind of like going to summer camp for me. We shot it last summer in New Jersey. I would drive to work and just have fun all day.

What do you like most about New Jersey?

I like Ikea! I love their Swedish meatballs! I also like the Jersey Shore.

You're an accomplished actress. How did Artie get you to do the film?

They sent me the script and I thought it was funny. But I was a little unsure about doing it because a lot of the humor is very offensive. It's not really my sense of humor, to be honest. I was a little nervous about doing it. In fact, the director kept saying, "You went to Columbia and graduated with several majors in just three years, what are you doing with us?"

That's why they call it acting.

Exactly. After I met everybody I just thought they were so nice and respectful. They were the most gentlemanly people I've ever encountered.

Give me an example of one scene you found to be particularly offensive in the film.

Maybe the bachelor party scene is the most offensive. If that's what really goes on at a bachelor party, I don't ever want my one-day husband-to-be to have one!

Do you think Artie wrote that scene from personal experience?

I didn't ask!

What was it like being Artie's love interest?

He was very sweet.

Is there a love scene between the two of you?

No. But we do have some cozy moments.

Any kissing going on?

Yes.

How would you describe Artie as a kisser?

He's a very good kisser.

How many takes did it take to get the kissing scene done?

I didn't even think about it that way. I'm going to ruin Artie's reputation now, aren't I? He was a total gentleman. Sorry! But he was!

Not to get too personal, but on-camera kissing scenes can be awkward.

They always are!

That said, what did you and Artie do to make the kissing scene go as smoothly as possible?

We didn't rehearse the physicality of it until the cameras were rolling. Maybe some people do, but I never have. I just heard the word "action" and we did it.

Are we talking real kissing or acting kissing?

What's an acting kiss?

When you don't use tongues.

Oh, you mean French kissing? We don't French kiss. You have that discussion beforehand. You say, "We're not going to French kiss." If it's a really sensual scene it might be different. But most of the time you fake it. I don't think I've ever really kissed a guy on camera. In this case we both kind of agreed to do the movie kiss.

Ever have an actor try to slip you the tongue during a kiss?

One time when I was doing an off-Broadway play, the guy totally French kissed me and at the end I had to shove him away and he practically fell on his ass! I told him, "You can't do that!" He claimed he got caught up in the moment. Right. You just don't do that. But Artie was a gentleman. He was so concerned about my comfort.

Was his girlfriend on set making sure he was a gentleman?

He was seeing Dana at the time and she was there every day. But she was so cool. I was seeing someone too at the time, and he was there as well. It was just the most comfortable environment I have ever been in. It wasn't awkward at all.

Are you a fan of Howard Stern?

I don't have Sirius. But I have heard the show a few times.

Artie has been an open book on the air about his own personal demons and what he went through while making Beer League.

Making this film was very stressful for Artie. I mean, the film is called Artie Lange's Beer League. He cowrote it and he produced it and he's the star. He's in every scene. To carry a movie like that is a lot of pressure, especially on a low budget. Most movies you

MORSELS

By Mike Morse

Dear Earth,

Hi, I'm Pluto. You know, that sphere circling the sun about two-and-a-half billion miles from you? The one that was a planet until a few weeks ago, when some dweeby-ass scientists decided that I was actually a "trans-Neptunian object"? Yeah, thanks for that. It wasn't embarrassing enough being named after a Disney cartoon dog, now I gotta get all my business cards changed. Trans-Neptunian Object. Really flows off the tongue, doesn't it? Imagine trying to pick up a heavenly body having a name like Trans-Neptunian Object. I'll be lucky to score with a Black Hole. I swear, I'm the Rodney Dangerfield of the Milky Way. I get no respect. Other planets have cool names like Mars or Mercury. But not me. First Pluto, then Trans-Neptunian Object. Didn't anybody think that I might like being called something a little cooler, like "Tiger"? But no, nobody cares. I'm all the way out here in the ass end of the galaxy, stuck with the other loser planets, like Uranus. You think it's easy having him for a neighbor? I've heard every joke in the book..."Hey, I can see Uranus from here!" "What's that smell? Better check Uranus!" Ha ha freakin' ha.

I just don't get why those wimpy scientists are all against me. I deserve some respect, dammit. I've been around since the Big Bang. Then again, I'll bet most of those fruity scientists haven't even experienced a Little Bang. Well, Earth, go screw yourself. I've been talking to a few planets over in the Upsilon Andromedae solar system, and I might just move there. Nicer view, fewer meteor storms...

Oh, who am I kidding? I'm not going anywhere. And it's not just that gravitational pull. I belong here, and besides, I've got the hots for Saturn. Yeah, I know she's wearing a ring, but I hear she'll let any space probe investigate her craters, if you know what I mean.

So, I've decided to fight back. I've hired a lawyer, and I'm suing to get my planetary status back. It may take awhile, but I'm over four billion years old, I can be patient. In the meantime, I'm in talks about doing a season of Celebrity Fit Club. I could stand to lose a few miles off my circumference, and my lawyers say that the media attention will be good for my case.

Finally, let me say this...and it isn't a threat, I'm just talking here. The last time I got pissed off at your planet, a rather large meteorite just "happened" to crash there. If you don't believe me, ask the dinosaurs. All I'm saying is, next time you see me, please call me "Tiger."

Signed, The Planet Formerly Known As Pluto

LETTERS TO THE VIBES IN MY LIFE

Dear Slim,
I hope you're doing well. It's been years since we last saw each other. In fact, I can't quite remember the last time, can you? Anyway, I just wanted to say hi, see if you were still buzzing around. I hope you are. I know that you have lots of family out there. I've seen them at a number of stores, just hanging around, waiting to be bought. None of them have your coloring, your pale ivory sheen, the one that made me fall head over heels so many years ago. Okay, truthfully, it wasn't your color I loved—although when I think of you, I often think of what you looked like—but it was all about how you made me feel. You made me feel like no other man (or vibrator) had made me feel before. I didn't know I was capable of so much before I met you. Capable of letting go, and getting off, it was only after our first encounter that I realized I had never experienced an orgasm before. You were mailed to me, a gift from the heavens. Well, not really...you were a gift I bought myself from a mail-order sex catalog. But still, I wouldn't have found you if it hadn't been for the former tenant in my apartment who forgot to change his address. Thank you, Glenn Smith. Thank you so much. Still, Slim, I can't remember why or how we parted. I know that you were by my side on so many lonely nights, but I don't remember saying goodbye. Perhaps I stuck you back in your glass case, and sent you away via the trash. I hope I wasn't so cruel. If so, all I ask is forgiveness. I will never forget you, Slimline. Your long, hard plastic body and your variable speeds. I just wanted to tell you that. To let you know you are in my thoughts. Am I in yours?

Dear Pocket Rocket,
Wow, did you pack a punch! I have to say thank you for introducing me to the world of small, one-speed action. I'm not sure how many members of your family have come and gone in my life over the past few years, but suffice it to say it's been quite a few. I didn't know that I loved my clit so much until you got me off, and I must thank you for that. I've since moved on to your waterproof cousin—y'know, the waterdancer—but we think about you often and even joke about the good old days. Thanks for being a friend, albeit a loud one at times. I appreciated that you only took one AA from me, and that you were reliable to the touch. I hope you're well. I'm sure we'll see each other again sometime soon.

Dear Iris,
You sit in my bedroom, but we've yet to be formally introduced, so I'd like to say it's nice to meet you. All the way from Sweden, and a company called www.lelo.com, you are a little beauty. I'm honored to have you in my presence, now all I need to do is charge you up and set you off. I'm looking forward to our first encounter, to getting you inside of me, so that you can hopefully hit my spots. I have to say I don't come all that easily from penetration, but you're so pleasing to the eye that I'm willing to give it my best shot. I hope we become best friends, although I'm also interested in meeting your cousin, Nea. You are both so fine, and all mine. (Sorry about the cheesy rhyme.) Anyway, I'm sure we'll be in touch soon.

Business Woman Sheds Clothes, Motivates Other Women to Celebrate Their Sensuality!

(Syndicated News) Most men would be overcome with anger at the thought of their nude wife being stared at by thousands. That's not the case, however, with Kris Gebhardt.

He has plans to publish his latest work, "Kristian Photography - The Sensual Wife Series," (GCI Press) in January of 2007. The book is a collection of fine-art photographs which examine the sensual beauty of mature women. And the model for Gebhardt's photographs? None other than his wife, Angela.

"At first I said no way, absolutely not," says business owner and entrepreneur Angela Gebhardt about her introduction to her husband's book idea. "Then I thought, at age 43, who cares? How much can they really ridicule or make fun of me?"

The idea paid off when Kris Gebhardt's photo finished 10th in a fine-art photography contest. This led to numerous requests from magazines for Angela's photos, with one magazine going so far as to develop a feature article showcasing her story and accompanying photos. Seeing the success that had developed around his idea, Kris developed a Web site (http://SensualWife.com) dedicated to fine-art photography of mature female models.

Perhaps nobody was more shocked by the success of her husband's photographs than Angela. "It all hit me one day when I opened the mail and saw my topless picture on the back cover of a European magazine," says Angela. "And you know what? For a 43-year-old mother of three, I think I look pretty good! It was kind of liberating."

Gebhardt's book is expected to be a success because of its less-than-explored subject matter: the nude body of mature females. In a culture where youth is equated with beauty, he hopes to destroy the myth that mature women aren't able to be sensual or sexual. He's also the author of five books on fitness and he strongly promotes the link between sensuality and sexuality as important components for total health. Angela is the first to agree.

"We seemed to have touched on something, by accident... there seems to be an interest in the mature woman reclaiming her sensuality," she says. "We get lots of requests for books and Kris gets lots of inquiries for photography services."

The book is one project in a long line of successful work that author/publisher/photographer Kris Gebhardt has created throughout his career. His latest venture, a joint creation with wife, is the design of the spa at the historic French Lick Springs Resort and Casino in Southern Indiana. Gebhardt plans to display five of his photographs from a yacht cruise he took this summer in the hotel, along with the work of three other artists.

In addition to the book, he has plans to release a line of lingerie developed especially for mature women, under the "Sensual Wife" label.

Since Mother Nature seems to have decided there will be no more transitions between seasons, I thought it appropriate to jump right into some Fall drink recipes that were put together by master mixologist Eben Klemm. Eben is the director of cocktail development for B.R. Guest Restaurants, and he created these Autumn drinks to get you into full harvest mode. Hopefully I will soon get a chance to sit down with Eben to learn his story and share it with you. I understand it is a very interesting tale. But back to the drinks...First I give you Holly & The Ivy. This one is comprised of 1-and-a-half ounces of Tanqueray gin, half ounce of triple sec, half ounce of lime and half ounce of cranberry-vanilla syrup. Rinse up the glass with crème de menthe, rim the glass with mint sugar, shake cocktail, strain and serve it up. The next drink is called the Jack-O-Lantern. For this ghostly libation you'll need 2 ounces Goslings Dark Rum, 1 ounce of Pumpkin Molasses, half ounce of cold coffee, and a splash of Kahlua. Shake the ingredients with ice and serve it up with a ginger bread cookie. Damn, that one sounds especially good! Enjoy.

Holly & The Ivy

The Jack-O-Lantern

Deadheads will no doubt recognize the name Donna Jean Godchaux-MacKay since she sang with The Grateful Dead for eight years. Well, she has now teamed up with former members of the David Nelson Band, Phil Lesh & Friends, Ratdog, Leo Nocentelli Band, and four of the The Zen Tricksters to form a new group called Kettle Joe's Psychedelic Swamp Revue. Improvisational, and not afraid to do the occasional Dead song, this band is currently on a northeastern U.S. jaunt that will find them in Teaneck, NJ on the Mexicali Blues stage next Friday, September 22nd. This night promises lots of musical surprises and inspired/inspiring performances. Surf to www.mexicalibluescafe.com if you need directions or more info.

This past Monday marked the fifth anniversay of September 11th, making it five years since the World Trade Center tragedy. I'd like to raise a toast to all those who so valiantly gave their lives trying to save the lives of others on that dreadful day. Many people died tragically that day. But some of them, along with the clean-up workers, have lived to tell their own sad stories, and are now learning that they have medical problems. It seems the evil spawned on that sunny, clear morning in 2001 continues to hurt Americans. Sadly, the folks that are now ill as a result of the toxins they inhaled on 9/11 have no choice but to never forget that day. The rest of us however, do have a choice and I believe we need to never forget the heroic actions of that horrific day. Five years have passed in the blink of an eye and another five will soon do the same. Remember.

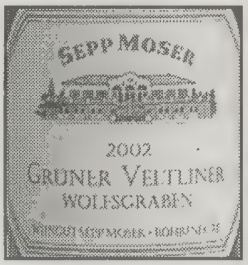
the wayward wino

By Sonya Hay

Home Run Wines

Every time I plan a gathering—whether casual or fancy—I always think about the wine I will serve first, and the wine I will use to finish the meal. (Taxi cabs are often involved either way.) Certainly the in-between wines are just as important to a professional wino, like myself. But as in baseball, the pitcher in the first few innings is quite different from the closer. So now that I have the men's attention, let me also say that these wines are also inexpensive (double whammy, hee!). So since the holidays are a mere few months away, let's all get in some good drinking practice!

Sepp-Moser "Wolfsgraben" Gruner Veltliner 2005 Kremstal, Austria $15.99



Gruner Veltliner is currently the darling white wine of most sommeliers across the United States. Gru-Ve (as the tongue tied refer to it) is an indigenous white grape of Austria. While the connotations that Austrian wines are "sweet" has not completely disappeared, Gruner Veltliner is a dry, aromatic wine which pairs beautifully with a wide array of cuisine, which is precisely why I pick this varietal as a standard everyday white wine. Not only is Gruner a delicious, easy drinking wine, it is so unlike anything else you have ever tried, that it is sure to spark interesting conversation amongst you and your friends. The Wolfsgraben Gruner 2005 has an aromatic nose of spice and white pepper, with clean lines, crisp acidity and a smooth, inviting texture. Try with cold starters, veggie dishes, fish and poultry.

Di Lenardo "Pass the Cookies" (I'll be thin in my next lifetime) 2005 Fruili, Italy $16.99

Yes, the moment we all been wait for throughout our meal: dessert! Whatever you're enjoying—or if you just desire something decadent and sweet to sip on—try this outrageous Italian dessert wine made from late harvest Verduzzo, and you'll surely be chanting the mantra "pass the cookies" in no time. Made from the white wine grape Verduzzo, the grapes are left on the vine for a longer period of time, which allows moisture loss in the grapes and concentrates the sugars. It has a deep golden color with acacia, nuts, vanilla and honey perfumes, citrus fruit and caramel flavor. It goes well with almond and cream desserts or foie gras and blue cheeses, as well as on its own for meditation.

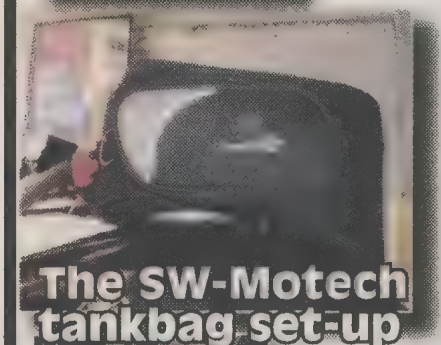
I think I love tankbags as much as I love motorcycles. I mean, they are just so damn useful and convenient, how could you not love them? Although I have to admit there was one bag that I did not like. That one was a magnetic tankbag I used when I owned a Yamaha FJ1200 some years back. Truth be told it was my own fault, but I learned the hard way that those magnets can erase all the info on your credit cards. Yeah that sure was fun, but I digress...My last bag set-up on my current ride was a K-Drive tank cover and bag. That particular bag attached to the cover at three points, which was a wonderful thing because the cover protected the tank from scratches while offering an easy-on, easy-off bag connection. However, after a couple years of use, the cover's connection straps to the tank wore out and broke off. In searching for a replacement, I decided to go with the SW-Motech Trial QL tankbag, which attaches to a ring that is affixed to your stock gas cap. SW-Motech makes a good variety of bag sizes and they all attach to the same gas cap ring. (FYI: They've also got a camera mount that I plan to buy which mates to the ring). They warn you that you may want a tech to do the install but being thick-headed, I once again learned the hard way that having a professional do it may be the way to go. When I mounted the ring to my gas cap I used the wrong length bolts and ended up snapping the gap cap's outer ring. In my defense, the directions were a bit confusing: Short on words with only a few diagrams. But that's not really a good enough excuse. I am just a goofball who should have taken more time with the install. Fortunately, I was still able to complete the mounting and the bag has worked out great so far (see pics). If you'd like to look into SW-Motech's other offerings, surf to twistedthrottle.com. This site has an abundance of cool accessories for all kinds of motos. What makes this site especially great is that you can shop by "what fits your motorcycle". Smart, specific, and extremely time-saving.



The SW-Motech tankbag set-up

And now for a couple more HOLESHOT rider features...This week I'll start off with a guy named Don Ginty who hails from Kinnelon, NJ. Don is pictured with his 1976 Yamaha RD400. This bike is ultra-clean, and according to Don, quite quick. The interesting thing is that he bought this bike from a guy who also had a blue 1977 RD, and the dude insisted Don buy them both. Rustling up the cash, he now finds himself the proud owner of two classic motos from the '70s. When I ran into Don he was preparing to ride Speer Yamaha's Annual Foggy Mountain Reliability Run. Don had previously won this event on four cylinder and three cylinder bikes and was attempting to add a two cylinder win to his achievements.

Don & his RD400

Next up is Pete from Bergenfield, NJ, who I chased down in Hackensack during his commute home from work. Pete is standing beside his 2005 Triumph Thruxton 900. Pete has raised the handlebars with LSL risers and he hopes to get louder pipes for this smooth-running, vintage-looking moto.

Invincible

Mark Wahlberg

Mark Wahlberg came to Hollywood with the basic credentials to get started: A chiseled body and a brassy attitude. But the former underwear model and rapper has proven to be a versatile entertainer.

Wahlberg has established a mainstream acting career, with starring roles in films such as Boogie Nights, The Perfect Storm, Four Brothers, Planet of the Apes and The Italian Job, which has a sequel in development. In his new movie, Invincible, Wahlberg plays real-life football hero Vince Papale, a Philadelphia Eagles fan who tried out for the team during an open call in 1976. Greg Kinnear co-stars as the team's legendary coach, Dick Vermeil.

At 35, Boston-born Wahlberg continues to show his talent for commanding attention on the big screen. He will soon face his biggest test yet, sharing the screen in October with Jack Nicholson, Leonardo DiCaprio and Matt Damon in The Departed, a crime thriller from director Martin Scorsese.

Q: Vince Papale has said that after he saw you on the field once, he was not worried about how you would portray him in Invincible.

A: Well actually, the first time he saw me on the field I pulled a little bit of a prank on him. I told him I couldn't run and I dropped every pass that they threw me. So he was a little freaked out at first. But I had grown up playing, I had just never played organized football. You know, I never put on the pads before I put on an NFL uniform, which was kind of cool.

Q: Did you get the feel of what it was like to play in front of a crowd of fans? Was there a big crowd of extras filling the seats?

A: Yeah, they had a couple thousand on any given day, so definitely you do. It's scary. I remember the first time I did a concert I was in front of 80,000 people at Giants Stadium. But it was dark. You can maybe see a few rows and then it's nothing but lights. But this was the middle of the day. You hear them, you see them. And they were all diehard Philly Eagles fans out there. So they made a point to give me a hard time every time they could, and remind me that Vince Papale is their guy, and not to mess the story up. He was a lot easier on me than the fans were.

Q: You always seem to be in really great shape, but did you have to train extra hard for this film?

A: I actually did a movie before this called The Departed, and I had to put on as much weight as possible for that movie. So when I came in, I was way too heavy for what they were hoping. So I just had to run the whole time. I ran, and ran, and ran. We did hitting and running, and that was it. That was certainly new for me, and I haven't run anywhere since.

Q: You had success fairly early. So to get into the mindset of a guy who was feeling beaten down by everyone, was there something you could tap into from your own experiences?

A: Yeah, definitely. I mean, there weren't too many people around me telling me I could become the next president or anything. Especially when I started acting, there weren't too many people saying, "You can do it." I mean, I had a few people supporting me. But it was one of those things where you had to kind of put your blinders on and not listen to all the negativity and just try to make it happen. And if I gave it my full effort and didn't succeed, well at least I'd be happy with that. Because I've had success and failure in the past, and it's part of life, part of what makes you a man.

Q: Are you a football fan? Is that still a big part of your life?

A: Yeah! Oh man, all I ever wanted to do was be an athlete. I grew up playing sports, wanted to play professional baseball, hockey, basketball or football. But I never played in high school or anything. So after my Boys Club days, I kind of forgot about sports and got into other stuff. But that's all I wanted to do, that's all I want to watch, is sports. I'm just a fanatic.

Q: You have always been a Patriots fan, then?

A: Now it's popular to be a Patriots fan because they won three Super Bowls in four years, but it wasn't always like that. And I've also become an Eagles fan, because of the Eagles' fans and how committed they are. They're the most loyal fans I've ever seen. So yeah, I can't live without my sports. I can live without music. I don't listen to rap anymore. But sports, no, that's the last thing I've got.

Q: Do you still want to play professional sports?

A: I don't want to do it anymore. The only professional sport I'd like to play now is golf. Definitely the least painful and strenuous.

Steppin' Out Under the Stars

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) A friend can't join you for fun, but you'll still have a good time. Partners will be pleased w/your accomplishments.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20) If things seem too much, take time out for yourself. You'll realize how much good there really is in your life & you'll feel a lot better. Get-togethers are exciting & productive.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20) It's full speed-ahead concerning a work or financial matter. You're extra efficient. Partners are in happy agreement about mutual concerns.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22) Not the best time for reaching agreements w/others, especially in business. Cooperation is a two-way street.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22) Problems arise, but the successful way you handle them gives your confidence a boost. Time brings you social success as well.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Your own desires may have to wait since others demand your time. Focus on enjoying a pleasant social affair. This is a fabulous time to dote on number two in your life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22) You may be busy w/ work left over from the office or a self-appointed task. Talks w/a boss are encouraged. Travel might be on tap this weekend if you play your cards right.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) There may be changes in business plans. Make a major purchase for the home. Control freaks won't disclose what's been decided behind your back & w/out your consent.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) Extra expenses may arrive. In business, you meet w/opportunity. Late night lights a candle for romance. Children are much more important to you at this time than you will admit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) Your plans may include home improvements but try to get yourself outdoors. Break-ups could occur to change the status quo that seemed so permanent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) Travel & cultural interests are on your mind. Your imaginative powers are keen so listen to your intuition. Career concerns proceed nicely. Good news someone wanted to tell you is interrupted by work pressures.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20) Reach financial agreements w/others. You'll find something to your liking if you go shopping. Over the next few days, you could be much more amorous than usual.

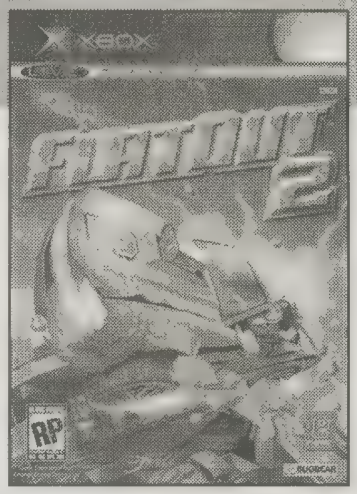
'Flatout 2' revs up game, adds online competition

Game: "Flatout 2"
Publisher: Vivendi Universal
System: Microsoft XBox
Cost: $40
Rating: Teen
Review Rating: ☆☆☆



Get ready to slam the pedal to the metal as you participate in the high-octane races and crazy rag-doll events found in Flatout 2.

The sequel to last year's hit racing game upgrades its gaming engine to not only add hundreds of destructible objects on each racetrack, but also brings destruction derby to the online arena. Fortunately, no virtual cops are found in the game, or else everyone would be arrested mere seconds into each race.

While the main goal is to cross the finish line first, filling up the nitro-boost meter can be achieved only by driving recklessly. This means slamming into other cars, buildings, and fences becomes a necessity.

Flatout 2 adds a Race Class and a Street Class to its predecessor's Derby Class, tripling the number of available cars. Unfortunately, they all seem to handle pretty much the same, with the only major difference being speed. That makes the ability to upgrade each vehicle a welcome option. Enhancing the engine, changing tires and streamlining the body produce noticeable results that help to differentiate each vehicle.

Several rag-doll mini-games have been added to last year's roster of events, but most are mere distractions from racing. The destruction derby is where I spend most of my time, and now that it's playable online, each match is completely unpredictable. You can even team up with others to perform the infamous Malachi Crunch maneuver on opponents.

In terms of mass vehicular destruction, this game is second only to the Burnout series. Think of Flatout 2 as the roughneck cousin of Burnout Revenge.

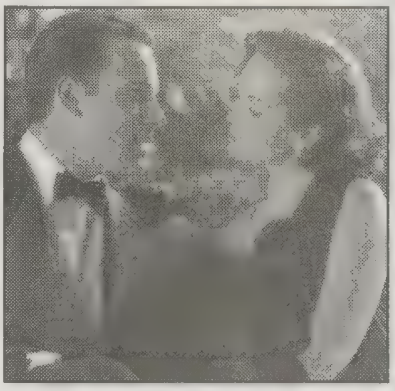
"HOLLYWOODLAND"

The glamour of Tinseltown permanently fades after TV's Superman George Reeves (Ben Affleck) is killed by a single gunshot wound. Reeves leaves his aspiring starlet fiancée Leonore Lemmon (Robin Tunney) behind, along with millions of fans who are shocked by his death. But it is his grieving mother, Helen Bessolo (Lois Smith), who will not let the questionable circumstances surrounding his death go unaddressed. Helen seeks justice and hires private detective Louis Simo (Adrien Brody) when the police close the case. Simo soon uncovers that the torrid affair Reeves had with Toni Mannix (Diane Lane), the wife of a MGM studio executive, might hold the key to the truth. But truth and justice are not so easily found in Hollywood. Cast: Adrien Brody, Diane Lane, Ben Affleck, Robin Tunney, Lois Smith, Bob Hoskins. 2 hours, 6 minutes. R. ★★★



"THE COVENANT"

In 1692, in the Ipswich Colony of Massachusetts, five families with untold power formed a covenant of silence. One family, lusting for more, was banished. Their bloodline disappeared without a trace—until now. Four young students at the elite Spencer Academy who are bound by their sacred ancestry have all been born with special powers. When the body of a dead student is discovered after a party, secrets begin to unravel which threaten to break the covenant of silence that has protected their families for hundreds of years. Cast: Steven Strait, Sebastian Stan, Laura Ramsey, Taylor Kitsch, Toby Hemmingway, Jessica Lucas, Chase Crawford. 1 hour, 37 minutes. PG-13. ★★

BOB DYLAN
"Modern Times"

Bob Dylan's first new album in five years, the highly-anticipated Modern Times, includes 10 new songs recorded this past winter. It features Dylan on the keyboard, guitar, harmonica and vocals, and accompanied by his touring band. Modern Times is seen as the third release in an outstanding triology along with Time Out Of Mind and Love and Theft, and is set to be another groundbreaking record for the music icon.

THE GOOD: "Rollin' and Tumblin'": The blues tempo moves along at a good clip. It's interesting to get Dylan shooting straight from the hip rather than speaking in metaphors. This same manic tempo continues with "Someday Baby". "The Levee's Gonna Break": Dylan goes for a mellower, Chuck Berry flavor and poignant lyrics, such as "people on the road carrying everything that they own." It's an interesting mix of topical issues and uptempo rock that doesn't always fit so well together. "Ain't Talkin'": The end comes with a lovely track that contemplates life and other things not so mortal.

THE AVERAGE: "When The Deal Goes Down": Dylan starts the song with the lyrics "In The Still Of The Night" and the song continues with a very similar tone throughout. "Workingman's Blues #2" and "Beyond The Horizon": Much slower tracks that slow the album to a screeching halt.

THE BAD: Nothing.

FRANKLY: Modern Times isn't a classic. So for some reason people might find that to be a misstep for Mr. Bob Dylan. Dylan, as a young man, didn't necessarily sound like a man who lived the words he spoke—the older Dylan is more of a sage, telling us about his life, and passing those experiences on to us. As with most Dylan albums, Modern Times may take time to sink in and absorb—but not long to love.

MODEL OF THE WEEK

FASHION WEEK IN THE BIG APPLE: SPRING 2007 STYLES

When you think of the long-awaited return of spring, what comes to mind? Bubble dresses, dark colors, and scary mouthfuls of gaudy braces, right? No? Then the fashions for early 2007 might come as somewhat of a shock to you. They sorta did to me. While the traditional stylistic harbingers of warm weather could be seen at some shows in Bryant Park—i.e., white clothing, flowing fabrics, sexy swimsuits—there seemed to be a definite need for some designers to take the usually whimsical season of spring a bit more seriously.

Black was a major player on many of the runways, and many designers forsook the traditional baring of the body concept, replacing it with voluminous clothing that obscured any hint of the female form. Even Diane Von Furstenberg—whose name, since the '70s, has been synonymous with figurehugging wrap dresses—showcased shifts whose shapes had more in common with a beach ball, such as the red and pink number pictured here. And Donna Karan's DKNY line, which is meant to appeal to her more urban, younger followers, was all about big dresses. And I mean big, baby: Shapeless, overly bright concoctions came crawling down the runway, some dragging on the floor, several worn with (eek!) coordinating baseball caps. Does this model in the fuchsia muumuu look happy to you? Well, who would be while wearing that Pepto Bismol nightmare?

Lest you think I'm being too harsh, check out the unifying theme of Kimora Lee Simmons' line, Baby Phat. While her clothes were at least playful and sexy, her mannequins were forced to walk the runway with mouthfuls of painful-looking bling. Great Whites would turn tail and swim away after one look at that mouth.

Luella Bartley became famous for her tongue-in-cheek take on chic, and her 2007 collection is no different. Featuring fun frocks and sweet skirts, her line did not celebrate the body beautiful either, but at least it looks fun to wear.

How geeky can one possibly be in a lovely A-line skirt like this one? Lela Rose's line was definitely more traditionally feminine, but still featured plenty of full fits, such as this saffron tunic with oversized sleeves paired with cocoa-colored satin shorts. Shorts, by the way, continue to be a hot trend for spring of 2007, but next year they are worn looser and larger.

I am almost always wowed by the mixture of bohemian charm and urban slickness in Max Azria's BCBG line, but this year his collection seemed a little too staid. Perhaps he was distracted by the premiere of his menswear line. Nonetheless, he put together some pretty ensembles, such as this lacy balloon shorts set with matching jacket. One label that did strut typically warm weather wear down their runway was Lacoste. Utilizing bright colors and sexy cuts to update their preppy, tennis-y image, their designs were not inspiring, but definitely fresh and wearable. Especially fun was the pumpkin colored tee featured here, which uses trompe l'oeil imagery to create a faux placket and collar.

Do you have a style dilemma you would like resolved? Any questions or comments can be e-mailed to krysiongan@aol.com.

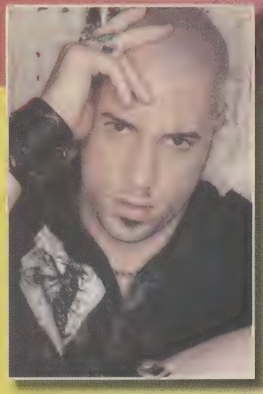
JON BON JOVI STILL FASHIONABLE

It may be 20 years since Bon Jovi released their worldwide hit album Slippery When Wet, but frontman Jon Bon Jovi is proving he is still the height of fashion. The singer has just announced he is teaming up with Kenneth Cole to produce an exclusive clothing line. The New York fashion house has joined forces with the New Jersey-born singer to produce a limited-edition outerwear collection, which will be available in November at Kenneth Cole and Saks Fifth Avenue in the U.S. Jon, who also owns the Arena Football League's Philadelphia Soul American football team, modeled one of his own designs on the red carpet of the Fashion Rocks concert in New York Thursday night. The band were rumored to have been paid up to $1 million to appear at Thursday's event, hosted by Conde Nast to mark the start of New York fashion week. With a payday like that, it's little wonder that the proceeds from Jon's new fashion range will be handed to the charity organization HELP USA, which provides resources for America's homeless.

CHRIS DAUGHTRY ENLISTS BIG NAMES



Losing in the latest American Idol competition hasn't stopped 26-year-old Chris Daughtry in his quest for stardom. The North Carolina-bred singer's as-yet-untitled debut album is scheduled to hit stores on November 21st. Daughtry recently passed up an opportunity to become the new lead singer of Fuel and instead signed with 19 Recordings/RCA Records, which will release his disc. Though he turned down the Fuel gig, Daughtry was able to snag the band's guitarist, Carl Bell, to play on the album. Other guest collaborators include Three Doors Down singer Brad Arnold, SR-71 singer Mitch Allan and Rob Thomas, who Daughtry cites as his favorite male artist. The album is being produced by Howard Benson (My Chemical Romance, All-American Rejects). "I'm writing on my own, as well as getting together with some great artists and songwriters who I've always respected and who have expressed an interest in collaborating with me," Daughtry said. "It's been thrilling to approach this album as a new canvas, with the experience of the show and such an incredible year to draw on." Daughtry is forming a band to play on the album and to back him onstage. The group will be named Daughtry. Various conspiracy theories floated around the internet when Daughtry finished fourth on American Idol. While numerous hypotheses revolved around phone problems, one explanation was that fans were so sure of his safety that they didn't bother voting for him. Several fans even started a petition protesting Daughtry's elimination and asking that he be reinstated in the competition. Daughtry is currently on the American Idols Live tour.

TIM BURTON WORKS WITH THE KILLERS

Filmmaker Tim Burton is hard at work on a video clip for the Las Vegas disco rock act The Killers' new single "Bones". The band had recently filmed a clip for their "When You Were Young" single in New Mexico. When they decided to film a clip for "Bones", they came up with the idea to approach legendary goth filmmaker Tim Burton. As reported in July, he accepted. He's since filmed two L.A. performances in August and taken the footage to a team of animators who are set to use Burton's trademark spooky models and miniature sets. Killers' bassist Mark Stoermer told MTV News, "Usually we go over the treatment with a fine-toothed comb and have a lot of influence, but this time we just let Tim do his thing." Singer Brandon Flowers was also fine with letting the director do what he does so well. "It's Tim Burton. It's going to be great. There are some skeletons, some darkness and some romance. What more could you want?" MTV reported that the clip will feature Burton's typical cartoon goth feel but with a very Las Vegas atmosphere. It's the very first time Burton has applied his stylized visions to a music clip.

don't have to change in a gas station bathroom.

Howard Stern has criticized Artie for his drinking and eating habits. So many great comics have self-destructive personalities. Do you worry about him?

Don't they say that comics are the most sad people? I think he'll be okay. I don't think he's heading for anything bad.

Any concern that the movie might be so low budget that even though you're a talented actress, the cost cutting could make you look bad on screen?

I never thought about that until now! [Laughs] Oh my God! It's true, on low budget films you don't have a lot of time for hair and make-up, but I found that cinematography is such a skill that usually they're all very good. It's hard to find a bad cinematographer. Films like this are a labor of love. Nobody gets paid, so everyone wants to make sure they're doing their best work. But the next low budget movie I'm on I'm going to be very nervous!

Could you see yourself with a guy like the character Artie Lange portrays in Beer League?

Well, I'm not a big drinker or smoker. Let's just put it that way. I have more dorky tastes. I hate to say that because not all the men I date have been dorks. But they've been less tough guys and more the type of guy who likes to read a lot. Not in a snobby way, just not really into sports kind of guy.

You don't like sports?

I think watching baseball on TV is boring. But going to a game is fun! Although I think watching a basketball game on TV is fun. Baseball is just too slow. I'm not into superjocks.

While we're on the subject, I read that you're a Mets fan. Um...aren't you from the Bronx?

Well, there's a simple answer to that. My brother Joseph is a Mets fan. Whatever team he likes. Of course I like the Yankees, but I'm a Mets fan. When I was really little though, I have to admit I had a crush on [former Met and Yankee] Lee Mazzilli! But you definitely don't want to go around the Bronx bragging that you're a Mets fan!

So if the Mets and Yankees meet in the World Series, who wins?

[Laughs] The Mets! No question about it.

Let's talk about your role on The Sopranos. You play Christopher's wife. How would you describe being on such a huge hit series?

I was really nervous at first because everyone had been together for so long. When you're such a big fan of a show and then you're on it, it's very surreal. I was definitely starstruck and I tried so hard not to be. But they're such amazing actors. Getting to work with them is just surreal and fantastic.

Okay, between Michael Imperioli and Artie Lange, whom would you rather have as a husband?

Oh my God! Look at my choice! Christopher on The Sopranos is very good to me and we have a really nice house. So I guess my character would pick Christopher.

What about in real life? Who would you pick as a husband, Artie or Michael?

That's not fair! I'm not going to pick a husband at random. I'll wait to see which one of them asks me first!

What is the mood on the set now that the series is coming to an end?

[Long pause] Everyone realizes what a spectacular show it is and how good the writing is. Everyone realizes, "Wow, what a great thing has happened to us." Everyone appreciates it. I don't think anyone on the show takes it for granted. I hate to sound like one of those actors who just gushes, but everyone is great alizes, "Wow, what a great thing has happened to us." Everyone appreciates it. I don't think anyone on the show takes it for granted. I hate to sound like one of those actors who just gushes, but everyone is great and so nice and down to earth. I just wish I were cast on the show three or four years ago!

How frustrating to be a part of such a hit show and have it be ending.

You know, I was also on the last two seasons of Third Watch. So it seems to be my pattern. I'm like the closer! I get on these great shows at the end. But in a way I'm lucky. It's going to be very sad for all of them to say good-bye at the end. I'll also be very sad but I can't even imagine how difficult it will be for the cast that has been together for so long.

Speaking as a fan of the show instead of a cast member, don't you agree the writing has slipped a little the past two seasons?

I never felt that way. I think David Chase is a genius. I feel like part of what has given The Sopranos such longevity is the element of people getting whacked mixed in with exploring the personalities of the characters. If you watch the shows again, you'll notice the nuances of complexities within the characters. If you look at the show on a deeper level it's really quite brilliant.

As an Italian, do you understand why some Italian Americans find The Sopranos offensive?

I would like to think people realize it's just a TV show. It's a portrayal of a particular group of people. Obviously, there aren't hundreds of thousands of Italian American mobsters! I grew up in the Bronx and I wish I had some Mob connections. Where's a good Mob connection when you need one?

What can you tell me about the final season of The Sopranos that won't get you whacked?

Nothing. I'll get fired!

Let me rephrase the question. Do you know anything about the final season that would shock me?

I don't know anything. I really don't! I'm new to the show. I hate these kinds of questions! I have to get better at this!

Finally, for the right part would you shave your head bald?

Definitely! I would do that in a heartbeat for the right part! I would gain weight and shave my head for the right part.

David James Elliot's life is looking pretty bright

By Krys Longan

David James Elliot is having a tough time. The day before this interview, he dropped his phone in the pool, so it's barely functioning now. His two children are clamoring for their daddy's attention in the background as he tries to conduct an interview on a soggy cell. And if all that isn't distracting enough, he is being plagued by an insane feline.

"This cat is such a weirdo!" he fumes, referring to one of the Elliot family's three pets prowling their home in Brentwood, CA. "But he's taken a liking to my son, so I can't get rid of him. But I tell you, he has mental problems." Well, issues with small appliances and animals aside, David's life is looking pretty bright. After a ten-year stint portraying Lieutenant Harmon Rabb on the hugely popular dramatic television series JAG, this once pigeonholed actor finally has a chance to break in a new role. He currently stars on the CBS crime drama Close To Home, portraying a savvy District Attorney who joins a suburban legal team, only to realize that this innocent burg hides a few dark secrets all its own. "It was nice to do something else," David admits. "I did my part carrying [JAG] for all that time... we did 25 to 26 episodes a year! It was exhausting."

Although David played an American military office on JAG, he actually hails from Canada, a country famous for its funnymen, such as actors Jim Carrey and Bill Murray. Yet he has been primarily known for his dramatic roles. "Well, those guys had the comedic end all sewed up, so I decided to try my hand at the more serious stuff," David jokes. Although he is well-known for one comedic turn, when he portrayed a hunky moving man who wooed Elaine on Seinfeld. "Once people saw me on Seinfeld, they said, 'Oooh, look what he can do!'" David laughs. "It was a really cool experience. Everyone was very nice, but there was not a lot of direction. I went to Andy Ackerman [the show's director] for advice once, and he literally ran away from me!" Another fun career highlight was being named one of People magazine's "50 Most Beautiful People", but it is an honor David doesn't take too seriously. "It was very flattering...but I don't know if it made any difference in my career."

David's priorities obviously lie elsewhere, namely with his family. He married Nanci Chambers—his JAG co-star—in 1993, and the couple now live with their two children: A son aged three and 13-year-old daughter; one dog; one normal cat; and one nutty cat. And while this Toronto native may not have had much of a chance to flex his funnybone on film just yet, he's confident that his new role on Close To Home will allow his fans to see him in an altogether new light.
